Commissioner Richard Thiess is back with a new caseload. In the Munich suburb of Krailling, a man murders his sister-in-law's two daughters in the most gruesome manner imaginable; the sister-in-law escapes her intended fate by pure chance. Then there's the brutal attack on a taxi driver, the execution of a wife for combined reasons of suspicion and avarice (her husband wrongly suspects her of giving financial support to a relative), and the crimes of a deranged lunatic.

- an exciting glimpse behind the scenes: we gain fascinating insights into the nitty-gritty of police work
- a crime thriller written by life itself: close to the bone, authentic and realistic
